New Library Website

In September 2004, the Houston Academy of Medicine-Texas Medical Center Library will launch its new website. The new site will offer library users many improved services, including:

- Streamlined access to our electronic resources
- Search boxes prominently placed on the left sidebar provide quick access to specific electronic journals and databases with fewer clicks
- Tabs across the top offer links to key service departments, such as Circulation, Reference and Photocopy/Interlibrary Loan
- Handy links to other Library departments, including the National Network of Libraries of Medicine South Central Region and the John P. McGovern Historical Collections and Research Center
- Links to the Library's Supporting and Participating Institutions
- The Friends of the Texas Medical Center Library will have a prominent presence on our website
- A link for Giving to the Library

We need your input. Please send suggestions and comments to Deborah Halsted at deborahh@library.tmc.edu.

Library Project Funded to Promote Community-Based Health Information Outreach

The Houston Academy of Medicine-Texas Medical Center Library will partner collaboratively with Family to Family Network and the School of Library and Information Studies at Texas Woman's University to implement a project improving access to health information and eliminating disparities among underserved and under-represented populations. The proposed work, F2F Connection, will build on health information needs already identified during the planning phase. The project will further examine the health information needs of Texas families having children with disabilities/chronic illnesses and enable families to get appropriate information.

F2F Connection, is one of nine projects, funded by the National Library of Medicine, that will rely on partnerships with community-based organizations to promote access of health information among minority and other underserved populations.
