Darwin and Rare Scientific Books

On Thursday November 5, the HAM-TMC Library will host an all day event on Darwin and Rare Scientific Books to conclude Darwin2009 activities. John Lienhard, PhD, will speak on the history of the publication of scientific events and medical texts. Howard Rootenberg, owner of B&L Rootenberg Fine and Rare Books will appraise scientific medical texts and will give a lecture on finding and collecting rare books. Shannon Basher, MLS, will review recent scientific fiction books on Darwin and evolution.

The National Library of Medicine exhibit Rewriting the Book of Nature: Charles Darwin and the Rise of Evolutionary Theory is currently on display at the library as part of Darwin2009 activities and will be on display until January 2010.

A tour of the exhibit and the McGovern Historical Collection will be held at 3:00 p.m. on that day.

PubMed Redesign

PubMed will have a new interface in the coming weeks. When you access the new interface, you will notice the Search Bar has been moved to the middle of the page. A pull-down menu will retain the same information to search all different databases. Links to Advanced Search, Help and Feedback are located to the right of the Search Bar.

Access to the tools previously found on the PubMed homepage blue sidebar can now be found under Using PubMed, PubMed Tools and More Resources in the middle of the page. At the bottom of the new PubMed page there are links to other NCBI resources.

Among the changes we expect to see are:

- A pull down menu of Display Settings choices appears after doing a search. This new feature replaces the Display, Show and Sort By menus and it should be used to change results to a different format, items per page and sort result
- The Abstract Plus and Citation display formats have been combined
- The limits, Preview/Index, History and Details tabs have been consolidated into the Advanced search
- RSS feeds and Save search features display after running a PubMed search
- Free article links display to the right side of the results
- Clipboard citations display the message Item in clipboard instead of displaying the citation number in green

To find out more new features in PubMed go to:

The new PubMed interface can be accessed at: <http://preview.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pubmed>
