Important Notice: TMC Library Will Soon Require Institutional ID's to Access and Exit the Library

Effective October 3, 2011, The TMC Library will require all clients coming in to scan their institutional ID badges to enter and exit the Library. This requirement has been implemented by request of the Library's Board of Directors in order to provide an accurate picture of daily library use.

Next time you visit the library (before October 3), pick up an orange flyer at the entrance, fill in the form on the back of this flyer and take it to Circulation. This way you will be registered in advance and will simply need to scan your badge upon entering and exiting the Library from October 3 onward.

Questions? Please contact Circulation at: 713.799.7147 or circdesk@exch.library.tmc.edu

New England Journal of Medicine Archive Access from 1812 to 1989

The TMC Library now offers online access to the New England Journal of Medicine \(NEJM\) Archive from 1812 to 1989. "With over 150,000 articles, 8,657 issues, 478,000 pages, 85,316 images, and 610,000 references, the NEJM Archive is certain to include the information you need."

All articles have been scanned at high resolution; the earliest NEJM articles, published between 1812 and 1944, are presented as searchable PDFs. Articles published between 1945 and 1989 are presented just like current content, accompanied by the PDFs. Articles are fully searchable, tabbed for easy access, and available as PDFs or full-text HTML with downloadable graphics. Where possible, NEJM has also added full issues and cover and advertising sections in order to showcase the print advertisements that were published in the original issue.

Access to Archives is available on the NEJM website, along with current subscription content from 1990 to the present.
