Published by CHILDREN AT RISK, Prairie View A&M University, and the Texas Medical Center Library and edited by the CHILDREN AT RISK Institute, the Journal of Family Strengths (JFS) serves to inform policy and practice affecting children and families by providing applicable research to practitioners, child advocates, policymakers, and the public on timely children and family issues. Providing practical case studies and research on the transformative potential of program and policy change, JFS issues provide a strengths perspective centered on improving services that promote and sustain family systems.

The rate of death by suicide for youth aged 10-24 has increased over 50% in less than two decades resulting in suicide being the second leading cause of death for this age group. Although no group is immune to its impact, evidence suggests racial and sexual identity play a role in risk of self-harm, suicide ideation, and death. For the JFS Volume 20, Issue 2, the CHILDREN AT RISK Institute is seeking manuscripts that focus on youth at risk of suicide, prevention efforts, and family strengths related to the risk of suicide. Manuscripts should also describe, if applicable, new programs and practices designed to address suicide risks among all youth, and especially Black, Latinx and LGBTQ youth.

This issue will provide a space for both scholars and practitioners/professionals to discuss the risks of suicide among children and youth, family strengths and opportunities to intervene to minimize such risks, as well as policies and practices that impact children and youth. Additionally, this issue will contribute to the limited but emerging literature in the area of suicide among Black, Latinx, and LGBTQ youth.

The Journal of Family Strengths is available online in an open-access format and is available to child advocates, researchers, practitioners, and policymakers across America.

We encourage interested authors to submit an abstract or letter of interest to the managing editor at jfs@childrenatrisk.org by March 20th. If the abstract is approved, full manuscripts will be due June 30th. To view past issues of the journal or to submit a manuscript, please visit jfs.childrenatrisk.org.
