Published by CHILDREN AT RISK, Prairie View A&M University, and the Texas Medical Center Library and edited by the CHILDREN AT RISK Institute, the Journal of Family Strengths (JFS) serves to inform policy and practice affecting children and families by providing applicable research to practitioners, child advocates, policymakers, and the public on timely children and family issues. Providing practical case studies and research on the transformative potential of program and policy change, JFS issues provide a strengths perspective centered on improving services that promote and sustain family systems.

In the current dual pandemics of COVID and resurgent racism, it is critical to have dialogue about continuing challenges that are faced and strategies to support our African American and Latino young males. The intersection of the COVID-19, the digital divide, racism and police brutality has exposed the systemic challenges in public education. We must continue to address these issues in a proactive way. For the JFS Volume 20, Issue 1, the CHILDREN AT RISK Institute is seeking manuscripts that provide African American and Latino young males, their families, communities, and schools with research based information on the disparities that have recently risen to the forefront, along with suggestions for how to mitigate these challenges. Manuscripts should also address the structural and systemic challenges that African American and Latino males face as they seek to persist and succeed academically.

This issue will provide a space for both scholars and practitioners/professional to discuss the current trends (i.e. police reform, school segregation, COVID – 19) and micro/macro systems that undergird the challenges and opportunities for African American and Latino young male success. We welcome the full range of qualitative, quantitative, and mixed methodological approaches.

The Journal of Family Strengths is available online in an open-access format and is available to child advocates, researchers, practitioners, and policymakers across America. It has been accessed in 167 countries in 2020, with approximately 28,000 downloads.

We encourage interested authors to submit an abstract or letter of interest to the managing editor at jfs@childrenatrisk.org by December 11, 2020. If the abstract is approved, full manuscripts will be due March 12, 2021. To view past issues of the journal or to submit a manuscript, please visit jfs.childrenatrisk.org.
